NORTHBROOK
PUBLIC LIBRARY

Notes from the Executive Director

In 1952, the Northbrook community voted to start a library. It almost didn't happen and won by only six votes. The library is now celebrating 70 years, proving every vote really does count.

Since the library was founded, we have seen many inventions to improve our lives from the polio vaccine to the microwave oven. Man has walked on the moon, and we now carry the internet on little devices in our pockets. But one of my favorite inventions of the past 70 years is Post-it® Notes, which were discovered after a failed attempt at making a stronger adhesive.

So much has changed, but one thing will always remain the same: the library's commitment to serving our community and providing you with access to information to keep you informed about the changing world around us.

To learn more about the library's history, turn to page 10. I look forward to seeing what comes next.

Kate Hall
Executive Director

Early Literacy Tip

Play is one of the best ways for children to learn language and literacy skills because it helps them feel a sense of accomplishment and self-confidence, which motivates them to try new experiences. Also, it's fun!

Five little froggies sat on a shore.

One went for a swim, then there were four.

Four little froggies looked out to the sea.

One went swimming and then there were three.

Three little froggies said, "What can we do?"

One jumped in the water, then there were two.

Two little froggies sat in the sun.

One swam off, and then there was one.

One little froggie said, "This is no fun!"

They dived in the water, and then there were none!

CELEBRATING 70 YEARS

Our library opened its doors to the public in June 1952 in the building opened in the former Village Hall, now the Northbrook Civic Foundation building. The original collection consisted of several hundred gift books and a loan of 4,000 volumes from the Illinois State Library. Today, we have about 250,000 materials for you to browse and enjoy! Take a walk down memory lane with some of the highlights of the last 70 years. To read more about the library's history, visit www.northbrook.info/history.

1950s

Bertram Pollak, president of the Northbrook Civic Association, leads a push for creating a public library

The library opens on June 28, 1952, in the old Village Hall (now the Northbrook Civic Foundation building)

1970s

Barcodes are added to library cards and materials

The children's department begins using a converted VW van to provide outreach to neighborhoods and schools

1960s

The Village donates a part of the skating rink at the corner of Cedar and Cherry to the library

The new building, designed by the firm of Hammond & Roche, opens May 25, 1969

1980s

Interlibrary loan and reciprocal borrowing is computerized, which provides the ability to borrow materials from all 43 libraries in the North Suburban Library System

Two Apple IIe microcomputers are available for patrons to use

CDs are available to check out

1990s

The internet comes to the library
The library temporarily relocates to Jewel Foods (now Sunset Foods) during a building expansion

2000s

Internet Basics classes begin

A DVD collection is added

The library website is launched in 2003

2010s

3D printer service is offered

The building undergoes a renovation to improve the Auditorium, add meeting rooms, and the Friends' Bookshop

The Collaboratory opens with the Peltz Digitization Room and the Peltz Digital Media Lab, thanks to a generous bequest from former Library Board Member, Howard Peltz

2020s

Virtual programs and Curbside Service provide at-home services to patrons while the building is closed due to the pandemic

A lobby renovation, completed in June 2021, provides a more welcoming space, new collections, and self-checkout stations

FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARY

From the Board President

Who are Friends of the Northbrook Library? They are:

- Families with children who enjoy the fish tank and story times in Youth Services
- Film buffs who grab their favorite seats for the library's first-run films or retrospectives, like the Clint Eastwood series in May
- Avid readers who find their authors' latest book on the Lucky Day shelves (or even in the Friends' Bookshop!)
- Community members who reserve a study room for their meetings
- Music lovers who attend the Sunday classical concerts or Thursday night jazz jams in the Auditorium
- Continuous learners who develop their tech skills in the Interactive Classroom
- Families whose teens meet their study groups at the library and enjoy treats during finals week
- Gift makers who create special treasures in the Collaboratory
- Audiophiles who love browsing the CD collection in Fiction & Media

The Friends of the Library are people just like you who appreciate all the resources and services that our library has to offer. Maybe we just haven't met you yet!

Become a Friend or renew your Friends membership at www.northbrook.info/friends (or clip the form on this page and send it in with a check). You'll be joining a group of people who feel great knowing that they've helped to make the library one of Northbrook's treasures.

Sincerely,
Merrill Medansky

If you are a steward of a Little Free Library in Northbrook, the Friends would like to give you ten free adult paperback books! Email a photo of your Little Free Library and your name, address and phone number to friends@northbrook.info.
