PUBLIC LIBRARY

Notes from the Executive Director

What's in your wallet?

No, I'm not wondering how much cash you are carrying or whether you have a certain credit card. While Jennifer Garner might ask all of us "What's in your wallet?" in the credit card commercials, I think what she really wants to know is whether you have the most important card ... a library card.

She told People Magazine, "I wanted to be a children's book author and a librarian. My mom took my sisters and me to the library once a week when we were kids." She has carried on that tradition with her own children and talks about her love of libraries.

I hope you'll be like Jennifer Garner and get your library card if you haven't already. Then, the next time you see her or Samuel L. Jackson on TV asking you what's in your wallet, you can shout, "My library card!" just like I do.

Kate Hall
Executive Director

September is Library Card Sign-up Month

Sign up or renew your library card in September for the chance to win a prize!

When you sign up or renew your library card in September, you'll be entered into a prize drawing for the chance to win a prize. One prize will be chosen for each age group (birth-5, 6-12, 13-18, and adults).

"A library card is the start of a lifelong adventure"
– Author Lilian Jackson Braun

September is the best month to get or renew your library card. You can visit the library to apply or renew, or visit www.northbrook.info/card.

You're never too young or too old to get a library card, and everyone who lives in incorporated Northbrook is eligible to get one. Your library card gives you easy access to the latest titles, music, movies, Library of Things materials, meeting and study room reservations, homebound delivery services, online resources, and much more.

In addition to Northbrook residents, Northbrook businesses, teachers, and au pairs may also be eligible to get a card. For residents of unincorporated Northbrook who meet certain criteria, our new Cards for Kids and Cards for U.S. Veterans programs make it possible to get a card at no cost. Other residents of unincorporated Northbrook have the option to purchase a library card.

Visit www.northbrook.info/card to learn how to get a Northbrook Library card.

What's your favorite way to use your library card?

Joyce, a Glenbrook North High School student, spent her summer working at the library as a Summer Reading Assistant. She told us she remembers getting her first library card in second grade, and feeling really thrilled because she had found the Rainbow Fairies collection, which was one of her favorite book series at the time.

Joyce recommends getting a library card for the limitless number of books you can borrow with it. She says "Whether you want to learn a language, a new skill, or simply find something new to try, there are so many fantastic resources at the library. There is truly no better place to learn, explore, and step outside of your comfort zone."

"You can unlock all of the wonderful resources that the library has to offer by getting a library card!" – Joyce, GBN student, and library advocate

Put the power of your library card on your phone! The Northbrook Public Library app is available on the App Store & Google Play.

Help stock the food pantry

We'll be collecting donations for the Northfield Township Food Pantry in September to help support local families in need.

The Pantry is especially in need of donations of coffee/tea, pancake mix, canned beef stew, canned chicken, plain pasta, canned pasta with meat, and juice boxes (100% real juice preferred).

Please drop off non-perishable items in cans, plastic containers, or boxes in our lobby from September 1-30.

Thank you!

EARLY LITERACY TIP

Try this tongue twister!

Children hear a letter sound most easily at the beginning of a word. When several words have the same beginning sound, it is called alliteration.

A fun way to help children recognize beginning sounds is with tongue twisters. Hearing and saying tongue twisters help develop your child's phonological awareness. Hearing the smaller sounds in the words helps with later reading. Read this silly tongue twister to your little one, and to make it extra fun, make sure to accentuate the T's at the beginning of all of the words that start with a capital T.

The Role Libraries Play in Defending Your Freedom to Read

By advocating for free access to books, libraries play a crucial role in upholding the First Amendment and supporting intellectual freedom. On September 18-24, libraries across the country will mark the 40th anniversary of Banned Books Week, an annual event that celebrates the freedom to read.

A Brief History

The debate over banning books started in 1975 when a New York school board argued that a list of books, including Kirk Vonnegut's Slaughterhouse-Five, was "objectionable" and should be removed from the school's library.

The debate resulted in the Island Trees School District v. Pico Supreme Court case. The Court ruled that the removal of books violated the First Amendment. Although this ruling was able to keep books in school libraries, the banning of books has remained a practice nationwide and 1,579 titles were challenged or banned in 2021.

What is a banned book?

A banned book is any book that has been removed from the shelf of a public, school, or academic library by a board or administrator as a result of someone objecting to its content. Books that have been banned range from picture books for preschoolers to young adult novels to memoirs for adults and everything in between.

Anyone can ask for a book to be removed, and it is up to the staff and boards of libraries and schools to uphold the tenets of intellectual freedom.

"Before considering whether to remove a book from the shelves, a formal challenge has to be issued," explains Kate Hall, Executive Director of Northbrook Public Library. "And the increasing numbers of materials being challenged is concerning."

Essential to Democracy

The American Library Association (ALA) has been at the forefront of defending the freedom to read and intellectual freedom, stating that these principles are "essential to our democracy."

Intellectual freedom is one of the core values of the library profession; it promotes access to information and guides the defense against the censorship of books.

"Not only do libraries not censor—librarians actively work to prevent censorship," says Kate Hall. "Banning books is the first step in limiting people's access to information, and people that seek to dismantle our democracy seek first to limit the flow of information. By offering people the opportunity to read about a variety of topics from varying perspectives, we are giving them the chance to learn, grow, and form their own opinions."

What can you do to support libraries and protect the freedom to read?

- Elect strong library boards that support a diverse collection
- Follow local news and social media to be aware of organizations working to censor library materials or programs.
- Write in and tell us you support library displays, programs, etc.
- Engage with your elected officials to oppose legislation that would censor library materials or programs.

More than 7 in 10 voters (71%) oppose efforts to remove books from public libraries.

From a survey conducted on behalf of the American Library Association in March 2022.

“Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.”

The First Amendment, adopted on December 15, 1791 as part of the Bill of Rights, the first ten amendments to the United States Constitution.

FRIENDS OF THE LIBRARY

From the Board President

Did you know that our library is funded three ways?

1. About 4% of Northbrook property taxes go to the library to fund its resources, including the building, the staff, and the collections.
2. Gifts to the Library Foundation support the library's long-term vision for growth and development.
3. The Friends of the Library provides funding for programs and services, including concerts, discussions, films, speakers, etc. (This is where you come in!)

The Friends raise funds in two ways: through membership (yes, you again) and book sales. The Friends' Bookshop is now open whenever the library is open, and our volunteers do their best to keep the shelves neat and fully stocked with all sorts of fiction and nonfiction appealing to all age groups. "So, where do I fit in?" you may be asking.

The library needs YOU to be a friend and show your appreciation for all the special ways our library shines in our community. Whether it's chair yoga or story time, current events or classical music, book discussions, or silent films, there's something special for everyone in town, all because the Friends make that happen.

To renew or join online, visit our Friends page at www.northbrook.info/friends, or cut out and mail back the form at the bottom of this page. Be sure to include your email address so that you hear about special events and book sales.

If you're not sure we have your email address, send an email to friends@northbrook.info and we'll add you to our email list.

And get ready to celebrate National Friends of the Library Week, October 16-22!

Sincerely,

Merrill Medansky
